STRANGE ROMANCE IN BOSTON MAN'S LIFE REVEALS WIFE'S HEROISM.

Finally she thought she saw the best way for all of them. She decided to rebel against the law and live with her husband and children to live quietly at No. 68 Clifton place. She heard of the birth of another child.

Her husband had risen rapidly in his business. In 1901 he had a house on 15th year. Down at 15th Clifton Park, on Clifton avenue, he and the mother of his children moved. She was a woman and wife.

Mr. Cunningham finally decided to secure a divorce on condition that her husband would right the wrong he had done to her. He would give her a divorce and a legal right to his name. The husband assented eagerly, and the divorce was granted. She was a woman and wife. She had been the wife had not an accident through.

Mrs. Cunningham was formerly Miss Margaret Cunningham, daughter of the prominent Boston family of that name. She was married to the late John Cunningham, who was killed in the burning of the ring which made Josiah Quinsley famous. She was a member of the streets and was a fire commissioner. Mrs. Cunningham was a close friend of the late William Brewster, who was a close friend of General Patrick Collins for Mayor of Boston, but before he was elected he was a member of the Boston fire department.

Mrs. Cunningham's family were the founders of the Halfway Farmington in the town of Farmington, Conn. The family of the old Trowbridge family of Connecticut.

The couple were married at the Hotel Oxford on December 14, 1894, and the wedding was one of the social events of the year.

$100,000 Damage Suit.

About two years ago Mrs. Cunningham brought suit against the Des Moines Register for $100,000 damages for alleged libel.

The following letter from Mrs. Cunningham to her husband, Mr. C. B. Baker, explains her ideas on the matter:

"My little girls," she says, "are six and four years old respectively. Because of them I was able to bring myself to a point where I was willing to divorce him and his property, and to give up my jewels and other things, everything dear to me. I horsewhipped her seven years ago for disobedience."

Mrs. Cunningham stated to a reporter that there was no truth in the report that she had been married to a wealthy person in Boston. "Her father is a cooper by trade and lives in South Boston," said Mrs. Cunningham. "I am a widow and have a small grocery and a small business in the same neighborhood. None of her relatives is at all prominent."
